

HR Remote Work and Flexible Schedule Policy

Northwind KnowledgeOps Group

Policy Code: HR-2026-014 | Owner: People Operations | Effective: 2026-01-15 | Version: 1.2

Sample scenario: This document is useful for testing questions about employee eligibility, manager approval, equipment, security, and exceptions.

Document Purpose	This sample policy is designed for AI document ingestion, semantic retrieval, and grounded response testing in a business portal.
Review Cycle	Reviewed annually or when operating conditions, regulations, or internal controls materially change.

Quick Reference

Primary Audience	All employees, managers, People Operations, IT support.
Approval Required	Manager approval is required for recurring remote work; People Operations approval is required for work outside the employee country of record.
Key SLA	Managers must review requests within five business days.
Records	Approved arrangements are stored in the HR information system and reviewed every six months.

1. Scope

This policy applies to full-time, part-time, and fixed-term employees who request to work remotely, follow a flexible schedule, or temporarily work from an alternate location.

Contractors and vendor personnel are not covered by this policy unless their statement of work specifically adopts Northwind KnowledgeOps Group workplace rules.

2. Eligibility

Employees must be in good performance standing, have completed at least sixty days of employment, and be assigned to a role that can be performed without regular physical presence at a company facility.

Employees with active performance improvement plans are not eligible for new recurring remote work arrangements unless the Chief People Officer approves an exception.

3. Approval Requirements

Recurring remote work of up to three days per week requires written manager approval. Requests must include the proposed schedule, business justification, communication plan, and expected impact on team coverage.

Remote work outside the employee country of record requires People Operations and Finance review before work begins. Employees may not begin cross-border remote work until written approval is received.

Managers must review complete requests within five business days. If a request is denied, the manager must document the business reason and provide the employee with a written response.

4. Work Hours and Availability

Employees must maintain core collaboration hours from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. in their assigned business time zone unless a different schedule is approved.

Flexible schedules may shift start and end times but may not reduce total expected working hours or create gaps in customer or operational coverage.

5. Security and Equipment

Employees must use company-approved devices, multi-factor authentication, and the approved VPN when accessing internal systems from remote locations.

Confidential documents must not be printed or stored in shared spaces. Employees are responsible for securing screens, calls, notes, and physical materials in their remote workspace.

6. Review and Revocation

Remote work arrangements are reviewed every six months. A manager may revoke an arrangement with ten business days notice when business needs, performance, compliance, or security concerns require a change.

Immediate revocation is permitted when there is a suspected security incident, misuse of company systems, or failure to maintain agreed availability.

Document Control: This document is a fictional sample for training, demonstration, and AI testing. It is not legal, HR, accounting, or compliance advice.
